Firefox is the world's most popular web browser and is available for Windows, Mac OS and Linux. Passwords In later years most of the users of the internet use a central repository for their passwords, this helps to not be bothered with mistyping. In this article we will see how to find all the passwords stored in your computer. Using the search in the registry is a new approach. The registry is a Microsoft DOS function is consists of information about how your PC works. RegEdit is a windows editor for the registry, which you can use to modify, browse and delete the registry. The next step is open an image that has been cracked. To do this you should first open a folder window (mouse click on the folder icon on the top right corner of the window). In this window you will be able to see icons of cracks files and open them. Browse your computer and search for "CrackMe" or "Passwords". After finding a cracked file, choose it and press "Open" button. If you choose "Open" it will be opened in a new window in the registry editor and you can see all the password information in the registry. You can export them all in different formats (CVS, XLS, PDF) or delete them. Using the search in the registry is a new approach.
