SUBISHELAB is a final film equipped with an innovative system for the visualization of effects in 360 degree. The generated matrix can be projected on a spherical screen and then, via an equivalent of a virtual reality head, viewed. The camera system is an integral part of a process that is entirely modular, extending standard production parameters to the final phase of the film, where the visualizations are created and the story is told with the support of a multi-system that covers the entire work place. At the center of the concept is the use of a spherical screen equipped with a matrix projection, easily suited for shooting 360 degrees. The 360 degree matrix performs the role of storytelling device, solving both the problem of the problem of creating a story and the problems arising from the need to film a 360 degree image that goes beyond the use of the usual computer-to-projector connection. The system is equally functional as a medium of the production itself, when films are made from a physical or virtual camera, or as an exhibition tool, when the image is projected directly on the sphere. Create your own way of generating images from 50 objects. There is the possibility to create different filters and to set the visual environment. You can add effects to every object. Through the use of layers, animation and image import, animation and dynamics, shape fields and shape layers, adjust the image and add text and more. In addition to all these possibilities, you are also able to set the content and objects to the final images and you can make it easy and super easy to export all your creations. Geniamesh is an application for interactive design of the structure of a human face. This powerful tool is an easy to use After Effects plugin that helps you extract mattes (normal matte objects) and insert them into a new image or video. The real strength of this plugin lies in its ability to use images with complex backgrounds, such as smoke or reflections. The first step is to select the image. Power Matte for After Effects needs a fully transparent image, so you can extract the matting from a normal image. The plugin can also work with bitmap images, images created with the Color Curves effect and even Photoshop files. When you load the image, the plugin will automatically use the Alpha channel to find the matte values. You can also choose between automatically or manually getting the transparency values for every pixel. Once the extraction has been completed, the image will be divided into two new images: matting and transparent. This means that you can use the transparency values to create a transparency mask, that you can then insert into a new layer in After Effects. Also you can use the matting image to extract objects and insert them into a new layer of After Effects.
