What's New in the Zervit?

Zervit is a light-weight, portable Web Server that is very easy-to-use. It aims to make file sharing or displaying a web easier than the current servers do. It is being developed thinking in the people that will make use of it and tries to make itself intuitive. All you have to do is file it away in the folder that you want to share and run it.

Manage Server Logserver is a server designed for monitoring your log files. It was written to be easy to use and to protect the privacy of your log files. Logserver is also a CLI tool that displays a lot of information about your server. It is mainly a CLI tool, but can also be used with a GUI, so you can access it with your favorite tool.

Logserver Features: Server's configuration is based on a system that you can easily share your server with multiple users. All the sensitive data such as passwords and API keys are encrypted with Blowfish and is stored in an isolated mode. Logserver is designed to display it with a simple CLI tool (there is no GUI yet). If you want, you can output it with a simple XML file, which is great when you need to export the results of your monitoring, for instance. An IP-based access control is supported with a set of simple rules.

Logserver Installation: To install Logserver, just download and unpack the archive to a folder you like. Then open Logserver.py file, configure your server name and your log directory and finally start it with the following command: `python Logserver.py`

Logserver Administration: Logserver's administration are all text-based, so you can execute them with your favorite CLI tool. To start the server, you just need to start it with the following command (the command may look different depending on your python version): `python Logserver.py -h`

The `-h` flag is used to display the help text of the CLI tool, with the following format: `Logserver help`

The help text may look different depending on your python version.

Basic Configuration: Basic configuration are present on the CLI and may be executed with your favorite CLI tool. The basic configuration is stored in the `Logserver.cfg` file, which is located in the same directory as your Python script.

Basic Configuration: Example: `basic-config`

Server Access Control: Server access control are present on the CLI, and may be executed with your favorite CLI tool. The access control are stored in the `Logserver.acl` file, which is located in the same directory as your Python script.

Basic Configuration: Example: `basic-config -n`

Server Operation Control: Server operation control are present on the
