Reviewed by: Anonymous Not happy. Reverted back to Windows 2003. Rating: 2 of 5 Stars! Don't buy May 6, 2018 Pros: Nothing Cons: Basically worthless. I tried it for a week, just to see if I could at least get something from it. Nope, went back to a free-and-open-source program. Reviewed by: AnonyOps Less than 1 Star, that is not ok May 4, 2018 Pros: This app doesn't do anything. It basically just says "500" or some other useless information. And in addition, when you want to output your data to the computer's screen it messes up your computer's graphics. Cons: The app is worth nothing, it does nothing but display useless information. It cannot even find some values in the registry. The app randomly messes up your PC's graphics. It could only read half of the data. Reviewed by: AnonyOps Reviews for MonitorInfoView Name: Review score: Sven Brueggemann Rating: 2 of 5 Stars! May 6, 2018 MonitorInfoView Software that supposedly monitors your monitor does not do what it claims. The first disadvantage: it does not work. It does not work at all, no matter on which OS version, nor on which way I tried. I could only see a half of the information that it should be displayed. A lot of information (and most important the manufacturer and serial number) are missing. It does not display any information about the brightness. (The display of the monitor is OK. It is just a
