thanks to Youri

allow me to shout out the author of this post.

It is this guy. Just follow him on Twitter. No, seriously. Just follow him. A few months ago, NASA released an image of planet Mercury showing it was in an unusually retrograde state as viewed from Earth. The

phenomenon showed up on Twitter just as the Mercury
Retrograde Retreat
was happening
between November 11
and December 8,

2012. Naturally, there are astrological symbols associated with Mercury Retrograde. The Mercury's retrograde motion in and out of the zodiac are associated with the following astrological symbols: Culminating in the transit of Mercury from Libra into Aries on April 4/5, 2014 is the beginning of the new Mercury cycle. The cycle begins around

June 1/2, 2014 and lasts until March 1, 2015. A quick note on Mercury retrograde: According to the astrological definition, Mercury is retrograde when it is opposite to its Sun or when it is between the equator

and the ecliptic (Mercury has its own zodiac). When Mercury is retrograde
for multiple periods (as was the case for Mercury Retrograde
Retreat in November

2012), it may be applied to the entire cycle, when the effect of Mercury Retrograde shifts during the course of the cycle. While the Mercury Retrograde Cycle in 2012 lasted for 57 days, the Mercury Retrograde Retreat this year was unusual in that it lasted for nearly two months! In fact, Mercury Retrograde Retreat did not cease until March 31. I'd like to write a bit about Mercury Retrograde Retreat and the astrological perspective on it.

days of free agency
have been filled with rumors and counter-rumors concerning the Dallas Cowboys that resulted in the franchise signing nose tackle Jay Ratliff.
With one day left until the 3 p.m. ET signing deadline, the team officially announced the signing. The free agent defensive lineman signed a two-year, $8 million contract with the Cowboys, and all those rumors about Ratliff not wanting to play for the team were confirmed by the team. With the signing, Ratliff is now reunited with his former defensive line coach, Rod Marinelli.

After spending some time working with Ratliff in New Orleans, Marinelli may be able to spark a turnaround for Ratliff's career with the Cowboys. According to the team's official announcement, Ratliff is now the starting

nose tackle in Dallas.
That is a welcome
development for Ratliff since he was released by the Tennessee Titans

earlier this offseason. In Tennessee, Ratliff was listed as the No. 2 nose tackle, which really was the only position he was effective at. Ratliff was an effective pass rusher in Tennessee, but there were questions about his ability to play nose tackle at the NFL level. He was listed at 6-foot-4 and 339 pounds when he originally signed with the Titans. However, the big man played at 5-11 and 331 pounds, which led many to question just how capable Ratliff really is. In addition to the size, Ratliff also had trouble getting off the ball as a run defender.

Ratliff was considered a big risk in Tennessee considering the issue of size. During his time in Dallas, Ratliff will be working alongside current defensive tackle Tyrone Crawford.

Crawford is currently the team's second-best player at his position. Crawford was considered the last "Wild Card" in the NFL Draft. He was a huge risk as the team selected
