A Macro is a Windows program that will perform a certain function on your computer. In this case, you will create a Macro to record a video game while a specific key is pressed on your keyboard. To create a basic Macro for Windows, follow these steps: 1. Open your favourite text editor and add a new document. It can be named anything as you like, but it is best to name it as "My Macros" and save it to your desktop. For this example, we will name our text document as "MyMacro.txt". 2. In the "MyMacro.txt" document, insert your first instruction. In this case, let's say that we want to record an action when a specific key is pressed on our keyboard. To do this, we will simply add this line to the text file: "RecordStart"; Here, the instruction is "RecordStart" and it means that the first thing that we want to do when the macro is activated is to start recording. This instruction is not followed by any other instruction. It can be repeated as many times as you want it to. Once this first instruction is finished, the macro will stop recording. You can add as many instructions as you like. 3. Let's now add our second instruction. Add the instruction: "MouseClicked"; This instruction tells the macro that it needs to perform a specific action when the mouse is clicked. Now add the instruction: "MouseClicked"; 4.
