BackupFox is a simple software that helps you create and restore backups of Firefox and Thunderbird profiles. It creates an encrypted folder, where you can store the files that you would like to save. It generates a backup of the profile directories and Mozilla Firefox extensions. BackupFox Screenshots: BackupFox Features: - Backup all Firefox and Thunderbird user profiles (including preferences, extensions and history) - Create backups on the fly - Restore profiles after a crash, reinstall or other operation - Select files or groups of files to backup - Select the profile directory that will be stored - All backups can be stored on a USB drive, flash disk or any other medium with a storage space - The program is designed to run on Windows 7, Windows 8 and Windows 10 BackupFox is a straightforward program which focuses on creating backups for user profiles found in Firefox and Thunderbird. It does not require installation and comprises a few simple functions, making the tool ideal for novice users who want to make a copy of important data. Since this is a portable app, you can drop the files to any location on the hard drive and run the executable immediately. What should be mentioned is that the Windows Registry area does not get entry updates, and files do not remain on the hard disk after removing the app. The interface of the app is based on a wizard-like layout, where a task is carried out in no time. All you have to do is select a profile and specify the target directory, in order to create a backup. Plus, you can exclude cache from the process. Restoring a saved profile is seamlessly done with the simple click of a button. BackupFox barely uses CPU and system memory, hence it doesn't burden the computer's activity. It has a good response time and finishes a task rapidly and without errors. We have not encountered any problems throughout our evaluation. Although it has not been updated for a very long time, BackupFox provides a simple solution to backing up user profiles in Firefox and Thunderbird. ### BackupFox [Latest 2022]

The executable is a simple tool that allows you to back up, export and restore user profiles in Firefox and Thunderbird. This is a portable app so you can back up profiles in USB flash disk or other locations and run the app with zero installation. You can back up profiles that have been updated to the latest version or not, either from the browser itself or from Thunderbird's profile manager. The app is supported with the following versions: Firefox 3.1 to 9, Thunderbird 3.1 to 9. When you start the app, you will see a wizard-like interface with a few simple steps, like setting up the profile location, starting or stopping the backup, and generating a backup file. You will have to make sure that the profile location exists, it's properly formatted and contains all the directories and sub-folders. You can exclude cache from the process and there are options to exclude temporary files and sub-folders. Once you have selected the profile, the file is exported to the specified location, so it will be waiting to be restored by you in another location. When you start the app, it will check to see if the location you specified exists and is valid. If it doesn't, you will be prompted to choose another location. When the app is done, it will show a confirmation window where you can choose to stop the process or to automatically start the backup. Oddly enough, our evaluation showed a slow response time when it comes to saving and loading profiles, which may be another potential bug that needs to be checked. Backing up user profiles in Firefox and Thunderbird is not a very complicated process, with a straightforward interface that only requires a few clicks of the mouse. VirusTotal.com also found that the file is safe. When evaluating backup tools, we do not test for viruses, we test for backdoors, trojans, worms, and other malicious programs. The reason is simple; if a newbie uses a backup tool to save data, which may contain viruses or malware, then that data is still stored safely. Other programs to back up data on your computer include: SimpleBackup, BackupAgent, SimpleBackup, BackupNow, Cloudstor, DataBankBackup, and IPassword.
